Most people are lactose-intolerant, including large majorities in Africa and Asia. Only in a handful of European countries (and their former colonies) can most adults safely drink milk, and why that is may hold the key to that continent's early cultural history.

Farmers from the Middle East first brought agriculture to Europe about 8,000 years ago. But archaeologists remain unsure whether indigenous hunter-gatherers adapted peacefully to planting and herding, or whether they were simply displaced. At the heart of the matter is who modern Europeans are most related to--Middle Eastern farmers or local hunter-gatherers. To get a closer look at this question, a research team of archaeologists, geneticists, and chemists from Europe and the U.S. found they had to start with lactose. Not long after farming got its start on the continent, a genetic mutation that allowed adults to tolerate dairy products, called lactase persistence, emerged in central Europe and, along with agriculture, began spreading rapidly. The ability to tolerate milk proved surprisingly important to these early farmers. Not only could adults rely on dairy products during poor harvests, their offspring was healthier and more fertile. One 2004 Harvard Medical School study called the advantage "among the strongest yet seen for any gene in the genome." Bingling Temple is hidden in the mountains, 35 kilometers west of Yongjing County in Lanzhou City. Bingling means "ten thousand Buddhas" in the Tibetan language. Most 183 niches, 694 stone statues, 82 clay sculptures and some 900 square meters' of murals are well preserved, probably because of their remote location. To get there from Lanzhou requires a two-hour bus trip and an hour's journey Hochul, Jr. announced today that Michael Mercadel, 21, of Pittsford, New York, who was convicted of possessing child pornography, was sentenced to 10 years' supervised release by U.S. District Court Judge David G. Larimer. The defendant had been subject to a recommended sentencing guideline range of 97 to 120 months in prison. Assistant U.S. Attorney Marisa J. Miller, who handled the case, stated that the defendant downloaded and distributed child pornography via a peer-to-peer file sharing network. Mercadel came to the attention of law enforcement during an undercover FBI investigation, during which agents downloaded images of child pornography from the defendant. A search warrant was then executed at the defendant's home in Pittsford. Agents recovered items of digital media that contained images of children, many of whom were under the age of 12, engaged in sexually explicit conduct, and many of which depicted acts of violence.

This is the foxhood agenda for Internet governance, at the beginning, now and in the future. Smart hens are cackling with delirium at the irresistible participation to hang out, opine, study at high-level, gain grants and construction donations, with their predators. Waste no time resisting, set up a freedom of information initiative to outfox the soon headless chickens. Two versions of Vincent van Gogh's iconic 'Sunflowers' are being reunited in London for the first time in 65 years in 2014 giving visitors to the National Gallery a unique opportunity to compare and contrast these much-loved masterpieces side by side, while also exploring research about the artist's working practices. From 25 January 2014 (until 27 April 2014) the paintings from the National Gallery, London, and the Van Gogh Museum, Amsterdam, can be seen in Room 46 of the Trafalgar Square gallery. This free display will also include the results of scientific research into the two paintings carried out by both institutions. These investigations have revealed insights into how Van Gogh painted his 'Sunflowers' and what materials he used giving us a deeper understanding of the making and meaning of these works of art, and of their relationship to each other. The paintings are two of the In the first Yangjia year (132), Xu You sent the king of Shule (Kashgar), Chenpan, who with 20,000 men, attacked and defeated Yutian (Khotan). He beheaded several hundred people, and released his soldiers to plunder freely. He replaced

British Art Today, the second instalment in the Gallery's new programme of exhibitions dedicated to emergent British contemporary art. The programme of exhibitions continues the Saatchi Gallery's 25-year-long support of emerging artists and its drive to make contemporary art as widely accessible as possible. An entire floor has been devoted to exhibiting artists in the early stages of their careers, and enables young artists to have their work displayed in a museum environment. It also gives visitors to the Gallery a chance to discover some of the most exciting artists working in the UK. What they're doing right now regarding mall security isn't nearly enough, and what they're going to do in response to this will be reactionary and not last long enough to make a real difference, said Brad Levinson, a security consultant based in Norton. It won't get any better if something isn't done, and that might have to come from the federal level. Experts say malls, which by design invite in the public, are keen on the idea of adding expensive security measures including metal detectors or armed guards because they may turn away customers. Levinson said if malls are going to get airport-level security it's going to have to come from legislation. Bailey said malls in Europe employ armed guards and dogs that patrol with armed security, and people in those countries have come to expect that in their everyday life. He sponsored Dal between 1936 and 1939, and was also a patron of Rene Magritte. His home, Monkton House, next to West Dean House in Sussex (UK) was a surrealist dream: it contained a large sofa which Dal shaped and coloured to mimic Mae West's lips (his well-known lips sofa) and the lobster-telephone, which Dal designed in collaboration with the poet. In Phantom Cart, we see, at the centre of a bright arid plain, a two-wheeled wagon heading towards a city. The shape of the cart seems to blend with the city, thus becoming its own destination. When you buy cheap food, the real costs have been externalized. Those externalized costs have always included labor. It is only the decline over time of the minimum wage in real dollars that's made the fast food industry possible, along with feedlot agriculture, pharmaceuticals on the farm, pesticides and regulatory forbearance. All these things are part of the answer to the question: Why is that crap so cheap? Our food is dishonestly priced. One of the ways in which it's dishonestly priced is the fact that people are not paid a living wage to process it, to serve it, to grow it, to slaughter it. in conditions that are often inhumane and at worst life threatening. An estimated 80,000 of US prisoners are locked up in solitary confinement, which means in a 6 ft x 9 ft cell containing little more than a bunk bed, toilet, sink, shelf, and unmovable stool. Prisoners in solitary confinement are let out in leg irons, handcuffs and belly chains for 'exercise' two or three times a week in dog kennel-type runs. Bathing is sporadic and the food often miserable and insufficient. One third of prisoners in solitary confinement are thought to be mentally ill and half are placed in solitary for nonviolent crimes. Facebook has now almost reached the one billion users mark worldwide. Windows Live Messenger, Twitter and LinkedIn host respectively 350,000, 330,000 and 130,000 accounts, and Google+ has made a splashing entry into the market. These numbers are constantly rising (*), while fresh social networks appear almost every day. This phenomenon does not only occur in 'Western' and/or democratic societies: tens of millions of Russians have an account with Vkontakte; Chinese social networks like Qzone and Renren, which are closely controlled by the authorities, have hundreds upon hundreds of million users; the Iranian government sponsors Aoloo, etc. An overwhelming majority of all these users abide by the default settings of the platforms offered by the social networks. When these are modified, as happens often (e.g. in 2010 when Facebook redefined its privacy settings, not once, but several times) almost all users go with the new settings without demur. This is what we call 'default power': the online life of million users can be altered by a simple tweak of the controls. In a very up-front way, and in no time, everything is possible for the network owners, whether it's closing down the pages of dogs/ cats buffs, or keep close watch on the pages of the connoisseurs of 'free love'. So it could happen that on a sunny Monday, as one enters login and password, one finds the geography of one's personal account completely redrawn, just as if, coming back home, one would find that the original interior has gone and that the furniture have been moved around. Thus when the talk is about 'mass social media' it is important to realize that nobody wants to be part of the 'mass', yet when we make uses of these networks, we are the 'mass'. And that we willingly submit to 'default power'.

Since 2011, an unexpected wave of collective activity, involving workers and their allies, inside and outside of unions, has become a beacon of hope for saving our unions. In all its diverse manifestations, this multi-front struggle has been a revolt, from below, against "the right to work for less money." In both the public and private sector, older forms of protest were recast by a new generation of activists searching for effective ways to resist corporate domination. Nicholas Hanlon, 28, of Stafford, Virginia, was sentenced today to eight years in prison on one count of traveling interstate to engage in illicit sexual conduct with a minor and two counts of receipt of child pornography. The sentence was announced by U.S. Attorney Ronald C. Machen, Jr.; Valerie Parlave, Assistant Director in Charge of the FBI's Washington Field Office; Cathy L. Lanier, Chief of the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD); and Earl L. Cook, Chief of the Alexandria Police Department, Alexandria, Virginia. Hanlon pled guilty to the charges in November 2013 in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. He was sentenced by the Honorable Gladys Kessler. Upon completion of his prison term, Hanlon will be placed on 10 years of supervised release. According to the government's evidence, on April 25, 2013, a member of the FBI's Child Exploitation Task Force, a detective from the Alexandria Police Department, was contacted by the parent of an underage female who was concerned that the child had been engaged in illicit text message conversations with Hanlon and others. The task force member, in an undercover capacity, began communicating with Hanlon, who believed the officer was the child. Over the next few days, Hanlon engaged in text messaging with the undercover officer. During this period of time, Hanlon arranged with the undercover officer to meet for the purpose of engaging in sexual acts with the child. On April 25, 2013, Hanlon traveled from Virginia to a pre-arranged meeting place in Washington, D.C. When he arrived, he was arrested. Subsequent to his arrest, law enforcement searched Hanlon's computer and cell phone. Pursuant to that search, law enforcement found evidence that Hanlon had been communicating via text message and e-mail with multiple young girls. Specifically, law enforcement recovered evidence that Hanlon received explicit videos from a female child from Missouri and from a 15-year-old from Virginia.

The death of Nelson Mandela provides another occasion for reflection on the remarkable impact of what has been called "historical engineering": reshaping the facts of history to serve the needs of power. When Mandela at last obtained his freedom, he declared that "During all my years in prison, Cuba was an inspiration and Fidel Castro a tower of strength. . [Cuban victories] destroyed the myth of the invincibility of the white oppressor [and] inspired the fighting masses of South Africa . a turning point for the liberation of our continent - and of my people - from the scourge of apartheid. . What other country can point to a record of greater selflessness than Cuba has displayed in its relations to Africa?" Today the names of Cubans who died defending Angola from U.S.-backed South African aggression, defying American demands that they leave the country, are inscribed on the "Wall of Names" in Pretoria's Freedom Park. And the thousands of Cuban aid workers who sustained Angola, largely at Cuban expense, are also not forgotten. The U.S.-approved version is quite different. From the first days after South Africa agreed to withdraw from illegally occupied Namibia in 1988, paving the way for the end of apartheid, the outcome was hailed by The Wall Street Journal as a "splendid achievement" of American diplomacy, "one of the most significant foreign policy achievements of the Reagan administration." DEA raising house New disclosures now allow us to see online the DEA training manuals with which Drug Enforcement Administration agents are taught to coach local police departments across the country how to lie about their chains of evidence and sources, how to willfully violate the law and cover their tracks in thousands or tens of thousands of cases every year in order to fill the cells of the US prison state with drug defendants. This is not hype. This is not exaggeration. It's the literal truth. 14 african countries are obliged by France, through a colonial pact, to put 85% of their foreign reserve into France central bank under French minister of Finance control. Until now, 2014, Togo and about 13 other african countries still have to pay colonial debt to France. African leaders who refuse are killed or victim of coup. Those who obey are supported and rewarded by France with lavish lifestyle while their people endure extreme poverty, and desperation. It's such an evil system even denounced by the European Union, but France is not ready to move from that colonial system which puts about 500 billions dollars from Africa to its treasury year in year out. We often accuse African leaders of corruption and serving western nations interests instead, but there is a clear explanation for that behavior. They behave so because they are afraid of the be killed or victim of a coup. They want a powerful nation to back them in case of aggression or trouble. But, contrary to a friendly nation protection, the western protection is often offered in exchange of these leaders renouncing to serve their own people or nations' interests.

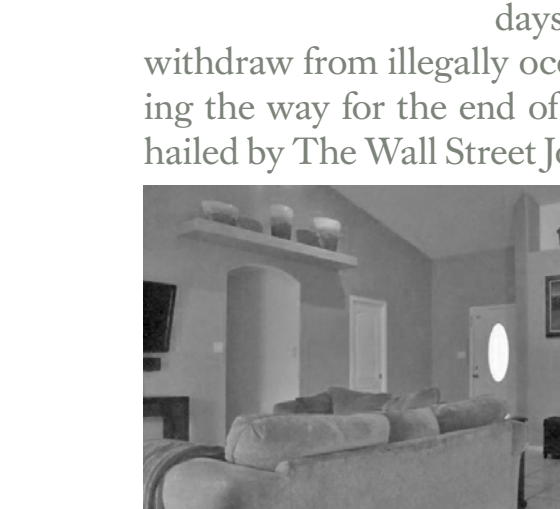

My name is Rev. Oliver Peters, a native of Northern Ireland in Great Britain, I have diagnosed with Esophageal Cancer that was discovered very late due to my laxity in caring for my health. I've defied all form of medicine and right now, I have only about a few months to live according to medical experts. I have not particularly lived my life so well, as I never really cared for anyone not even myself but my business. Though I am very rich, I was never generous, I was always hostile to people and only focus on my business as that was the only thing I cared for. But now I regret all this as I now know that there is more to life than just wanting to have or make all the money in the world. I believe when God gives me a second chance to come to this world I would live my life a different way from how I have lived it. Now that I know my time is near, I have willed and given most of my properties and assets to my immediate and extended family members and as well as a few close friends. I have decided to give alms to charity organizations, as I want this to be one of the last good deeds I do on earth. So far, I have distributed money to some charity organizations in Brazil, Tajikistan, London and Ireland. Now that my health has deteriorated so badly, I cannot do this by myself any more. I once asked members of my family to close one of my accounts and donate the money, which I have there to charity organization in Bulgaria; they refused and kept the money to themselves. Hence, I do not trust them anymore, as they seem not to be contended with what I have left for them.

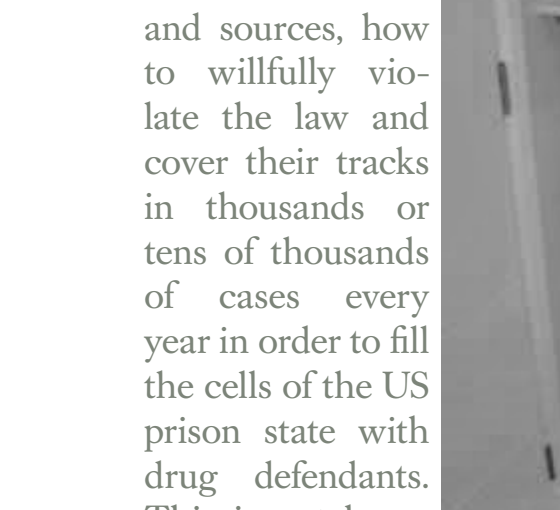

The last of my money which is the huge cash deposit that I have with a financial institute abroad. I will want you to help me collect this deposit and dispatched it to charity organizations. I am writing this from my laptop computer in my sick bed where I wait for my time to come. I pray that God uses you to support me kindly contact me via email. Looking forward to your hearing from you. Rev. Oliver Peters. England, United Kingdom.

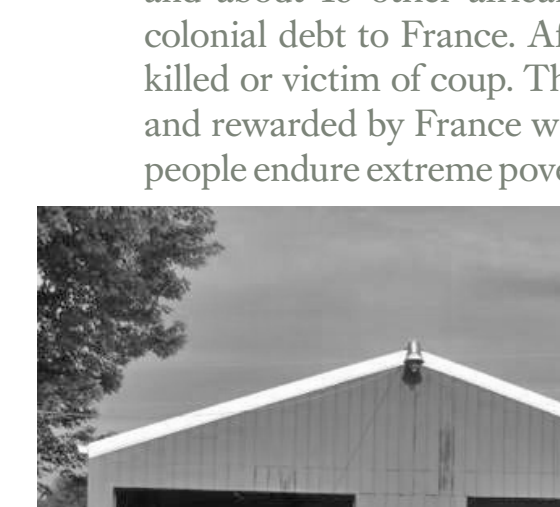

United States Attorney A. Lee Benedict, III announces the return by a grand jury of an indictment charging Jonathan Newhall (28, Brandon) with transportation and receipt of child pornography. If convicted, Newhall faces a mandatory minimum penalty of five years and up to a maximum penalty of 20 years in federal prison on each count. According to the indictment, between May 2013 and January 2014, Newhall transported and received child pornography over the Internet. On January 10, 2014, a federal search warrant was executed at Newhall's residence.

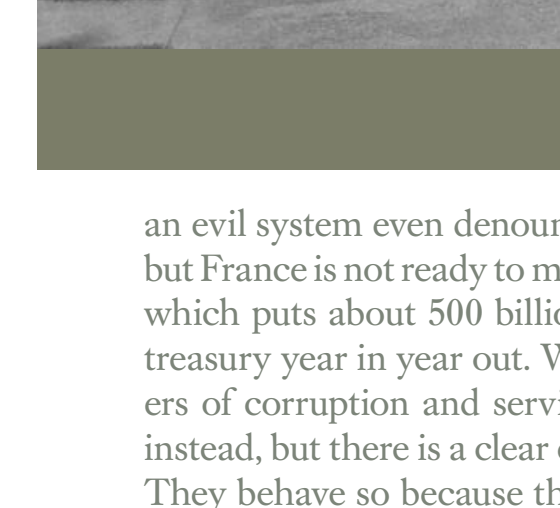

Numerous images and videos of child pornography were found in his e-mail account, on his iPhone, and on his computer. An indictment is merely a formal charge that a defendant has committed a violation of the federal criminal laws, and every defendant is presumed innocent unless, and until, proven guilty. This case was investigated by Federal Bureau of Investigation, Hillsborough County Sheriff's Office, and the Tampa Police Department. It will be prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Jennifer L. Peresie. An Indiana, Pennsylvania resident has been sentenced in federal court to 60 months in prison, to be followed by 12 years of supervised release, on his conviction of possession of material depicting the sexual exploitation of a minor, United States Attorney David J. Hickton announced today. United States District Judge Nora Barry Fischer imposed the sentence on Christopher Murdock, 27, of South 5th Street, Indiana, Pennsylvania. According to information presented to the court, on or about November 17, 2012, Murdock possessed visual depictions, namely, videos and images in computer graphics files, the production of which involved the use of minors engaging in sexually explicit conduct. Assistant United States Attorney Jessica Lieber Smolar prosecuted this case on behalf of the government. U.S. Attorney Hickton commended the Pennsylvania State Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the investigation leading to the successful prosecution of Murdock. A major volcanic eruption in East Java has killed 2 and prompted the Indonesian authorities to order about 200,000 residents to evacuate. The two deaths occurred following a roof collapse near the Volcano. Mount Kelud erupted twice in the space of about 40 minutes late Thursday night. The evacuation orders were issued to people living within a 10-kilometer radius of the crater. Air Traffic Restrictions The massive eruptions sent ash raining down over a wide area. Authorities have shut down airports in Surabaya, the capital of East Java Province, and Yogyakarta in Central Java, close to the Borobudur temple ruins registered as a World Heritage Site. The chart to the left is from Darwin Volcanic Ash Advisory Centre suggesting ash spreading across much of Java to a height of 55,000ft. This could cause serious disruption to air travel in the region. The Volcano last erupted in 2007. Volcano eruptions in Indonesia are not uncommon. Being situated on the ring of fire it has several active volcanoes. Earlier this month 17 were killed near Mt. Sinabung following a massive eruption. Good day to you. Welcome to Autonomous University In the 1990s we were promised a knowledge society. Both the sciences and the humanities would undergo tremendous expansion, becoming the principal activities of a majority of citizens. Computers and networked communications would allow us to share the multiple fruits of unlimited exploration and experimentation. Bureaucracy would be eliminated, multiplicity would triumph over standardization, human potentials would be fulfilled and the most fundamental problems -- poverty, racism, war, ecological imbalances -- would be resolved through international cooperation in the realm of ideas. The pre-eminence of money would finally fade away. At long last, the dreams of enlightenment would be realized. My name is Sarah Jo Pender. I have been held under the wide thumb of prison administrators for five years in solitary confinement at the Indiana Women's Prison. My official punishment for escaping ended four years ago, but I am still here and there is nothing I can do to get myself out. Generally, women in segregation are held between two weeks and six months, though multiple offenses can extend sentences to years of punishment. The isolation unit is comprised of twenty-five single cells along one hall separated from general population. My cell is 7' x 10' of painted concrete, white and chipping, with a barred, sealed window at the rear and a steel door with a small observation window at the front. A slab of concrete and thin mattress makes my bed. A stainless steel sink and toilet encrusted with years of use sits three feet from my head when I sleep. Food is never hot and is served on plastic trays through a hatch in the door. Sometimes, it is tolerable only if I don't chew it first. Unpalatable globs of flour that was once upon a time pasta is drenched in a tomato base and served sixteen different ways mixed with mechanically separated chicken bits and soy pellets marked for animal feed. However, the bread is always edible and I can buy a jar of peanut butter if I want. What a luxury. Here, it is cold. Artificial ventilation blows directly onto my bed so that no amount of repositioning brings relief from the chill. My bed must be made by 7 a.m. each day, so that I cannot access my full bed lines during the day when it is the coldest. The captain threatens to strip our covers of belongings, including all bedding if we are caught covering ourselves with the sheets during the day. I am wearing three pairs of socks right now, and my toes are purple and stinging cold. I am confined to my cell 22 hours each day, and the other 2 hours am handcuffed and escorted 25 feet down the hallway to another locked room for recreation and exercise, though the space is only twice the size of my cell. In the largest room, I can take nine steps before I must turn around again and again. But there is a television that I can watch public broadcasting and lots of books. Books keep us sane. Since books are a main source of time management and entertainment, the prison uses public broadcasting and lots of books. Books keep us sane. Since books are a main source of time management and entertainment, the prison uses them as a method of punishment. Women on disciplinary status are only allowed one non-religious book and one religious book at a time. I am allowed to possess up to five books. If we are caught with too many books during a room search, we are subject to further discipline.

Six days a week, my hands are restrained through the door hatch and an officer escorts me into a shower room. Four stalls line one wall; each stall is enclosed by three concrete walls and a steel mesh door that shuts us in and gets locked. I have fifteen minutes to shower with an army of black bugs on the walls. Black mold peppers the baseboards and thick scales of scum cling to ripped shower curtains. Then I am recuffed and escorted back to my perpetually cold cell. As a kid, I slept with my bedroom door cracked for a sliver of the hall light to visually orient me when my bladder woke me up at night. Now, my room is constantly lit even at 2 a.m. I can push a button to dim the fluorescent bulbs, but I can never, ever sleep in darkness. However, the nights are usually quiet, except for the occasional slamming metal door, ringing phone, and piercing scream from one of the actively psychotic or suicidal women housed on computer in my sick bed where I wait for my time to come. I pray that God uses you to support me kindly contact me via email. Looking forward to your hearing from you. Rev. Oliver Peters. England, United Kingdom.

Welcome to Autonomous University In the 1990s we were promised a knowledge society. Both the sciences and the humanities would undergo tremendous expansion, becoming the principal activities of a majority of citizens. Computers and networked communications would allow us to share the multiple fruits of unlimited exploration and experimentation. Bureaucracy would be eliminated, multiplicity would triumph over standardization, human potentials would be fulfilled and the most fundamental problems -- poverty, racism, war, ecological imbalances -- would be resolved through international cooperation in the realm of ideas. The pre-eminence of money would finally fade away. At long last, the dreams of enlightenment would be realized. My name is Sarah Jo Pender. I have been held under the wide thumb of prison administrators for five years in solitary confinement at the Indiana Women's the unit. Despite knowing that isolation can drive people insane, the mental health care here is woefully inadequate. Once a month, a mental health staff comes to ask us if we are hallucinating, hearing voices, or are suicidal. More frequent meetings can be requested, but they offer no coping skills, no therapy, no advocacy. The luckiest among us are prescribed anti-depressants to numb us from the hardest parts of being alone. I am fortunate to have incredible support from my family and friends. To pass the time, I read, write, learn and plan for the future when I can be with them again. What sanity I reek out of these letters, books, phone calls and visits is enough to sustain me just a little longer. I am mentally stable now, but my mind broke down under the weight of isolation 3 1/2 years ago, and it was a long, slow, painful process of putting myself back together. Acutely psychotic women who refuse medication are frequently locked in a cell where they bang and talk and argue with voices, scream about God and demons, and/or refuse to shower or eat for fear of being poisoned. This can go one for weeks until some invisible threshold is crossed and E-Squad officers dressed in full riot gear come in, hold her down, and a nurse injects her with an anti-psychotic medicine. This scene gets repeated every two weeks until she cooperates. Other women who enter sane will become so depressed that they shut down or hurt themselves. I watched a woman claw chunks of flesh from her cheeks and nose and write on the window with her blood. My neighbor bashed her head against the concrete until officers dragged her to a padded cell. When she returned, the scab on her forehead was huge and shaped like the country of Brazil. Right across from my cell, a woman slit her own throat with a razor and was wheeled out on a gurney. Two others tried to asphyxiate themselves with bras and shoestrings. Now no one has shoestrings and we shuffle around in floppy tennis shoes with loose tongues. Once, I found some embroidery floss and tied up the middle lace holes to keep myself from tripping. A guard demanded that I give her the five inch strings and then formally punished me for this violation. Another woman cut her wrists using the metal band around a pencil eraser. Now, all our pencils are stripped naked. It is always the poor prisoner porter who is forced to clean up the blood puddles and shit smears left behind when someone's mind spirals down the rabbit hole. How is this an acceptable management tool for human beings? Short-term isolation is understandably useful for investigations, medical quarantines, emergencies, etc., but using long-term isolation to manage behavior is inhumane and hateful, especially when prison administrators do not offer a clear alternative. There is no behavioral therapy, no guidance, no education. There are no identified, achievable goals for the prisoner to earn her way out of isolation. The decisions seem arbitrary and capricious at best. There is no due process to protect our miniscule civil rights. In the thirteen years I have been held prisoner, I have never committed an act of violence. I escaped from another prison over five years ago with the help of a prison guard. I essentially walked out of the back door. Today, that guard is at home a free man while I am still kept in with the help walked out of the back door. Today, that guard is at home a free man while I am still kept in this earthly purgatory. Why and for how long I do not know, because the prison administrators refuse to tell me. How's that for human rights in America? Less than a week after a natural gas well caught fire and exploded in southwestern Penn-

the young Sylvette David in Vallauris on the Cte d'Azur. She embodied the ideal of beauty typical of that era tall in stature, with long, blond hair bound in a pony tail and inspired the painter to create a series of portraits. For months, he experimented in front of the model with various styles and techniques. With seeming effortlessness, Picasso varied his approach from realistic depictions to cubist abstractions of the same pictorial subject. With brush and pencil, Picasso created close-to-nature likenesses and complex abstractions of Sylvette. Arising at the same time were folded metal sculptures painted in black and white. Honeywell today sentenced Robert Magruder, Jr. (55, Winter Park) to eight years in federal prison for distributing and possessing child pornography. As part of his sentence, Magruder was ordered to serve a 10-year term of supervision, following his release from prison, and required to register as a sex offender. The court also ordered Magruder to forfeit the devices he used to possess and distribute the child pornography. Magruder pleaded guilty on October 31, 2013. According to court documents, on April 5, 2013, Magruder made files of child pornography available for download by other individuals by placing the files into a shared folder of an online peer-to-peer file sharing network. On this same date, from Magruder's computer, an undercover task force agent downloaded three sets of videos depicting children less than 12 years of age being sexually abused, exploited, and subjected to sadistic or masochistic conduct. Magruder was subsequently identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as the user of the computer that distributed the images. On June 12, 2013, agents interviewed Magruder at his residence. He admitted that he used the peer-to-peer file sharing program to search for and collect child pornography and acknowledged that he was aware that files in his shared folder were available for download by other individuals. Agents also executed a search warrant at Magruder's residence and seized electronic devices containing several images and videos of child pornography, as well as evidence of Magruder's use of the peer-to-peer file sharing program that he used to distribute the child pornography. This case was investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, with assistance from the Seminole County Sheriff's Office. It was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Andrew C. Searle. Bob, I use 8' oars and keep them in the cabin. They are fairly easy to put in there. I think 9' oars would work better but the 8' oars move it well enough and fit in the cabin. I doubt you'll want to row it more than a mile or so. I also think that it will be difficult to make progress against the wind, current, or chop. I mainly use mine to row out of Oceanside, CA harbor on days when there is no wind. Recently I left my motor at home for the first time ever since "I hardly ever use it" and ended up rowing half of a mile on one stretch. For many years after her mother's and father's clothing was stored in the attic of the family home. The artist began using these tucked-away shirts, jackets, dresses, and robes later in life as the subjects of large-scale cyanotype contact prints. The resulting images that make up her series Remnants consist of white, ghostly outlines of these garments, complete with the subtle details of stitching and buttons against striking blue backgrounds. The placement of of each piece of clothing suggests life and movement, as if the sun's rays have simply passed through each invisible wearer. The stories of the people who used to inhabit these items remain in spite of their absence, pointing to the extraordinary capacity for objects—especially photographic objects—to contain memory and time. "The dresses and shirts were stored in the third floor of our house for many years. There was never an explanation of why they were kept or their significance for my parents. After the plane crash the collective family grief was so great my parents rarely mentioned. As I grew older I regarded these saved garments as tangible evidence of their existence and used them to try and piece together their identities."

Seabridge's computer and hard drives were seized, and a forensic examination revealed over 300 images of child pornography.

Ronald Seabridge, Sr., owner of Brass Dragon Kade, was found guilty on February 27, 2014, of receiving, distributing, and possessing child pornography following a four-day trial before U.S. District Judge Thad Heartfield. According to information presented in court, in 2009, federal agents executed a search warrant at Seabridge's residence/karate studio in Lumberton as the result of an undercover operation which determined Seabridge was using a peer-to-peer file sharing program to receive and distribute child pornography. Seabridge's computer and hard drives were seized, and a forensic examination revealed over 300 images of child pornography.

A wave of street politics has begun in Quebec as the PQ government pursues its conservative national-

Grassroots activists across Montreal are using a range of tactics to resist P6, a city bylaw that has emerged as the preferred regulation at police disposal. Despite these inspiring acts of resistance, divisions continue to surface before protests even take place. Activists are rightfully questioning why organisers would comply with P6. These divisions are likely to occur again, so a grassroots strategy that recognises this reality is needed. minor engaged in sexually explicit conduct (count one), access with intent to view visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct (count two), and possession of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct (count three), the United States Attorney for the Southern District of Illinois, Stephen R. Wigginton, announced today. Michael A. Niewegowski, Jr., a/k/a "Tony," 45, was sentenced to a term of 180 months in federal prison on all counts, to run concurrently; to be followed by a lifetime term of supervised release on all counts, again to run concurrently; ordered to pay $632.71 in restitution; fined $500; and ordered to pay a $300 special assessment. In addition, upon his release from prison, Niewegowski must register as a sex offender as a condition of supervised release. Niewegowski has been detained by the United States Marshals Service since his arraignment on May 1, 2013. "Predators, like this person, must face long sentences if we are to protect our children from them. If anyone doubts that these individuals are a danger, that person should look at this case. My office will continue to seek appropriate sentences for those who would prey on the most vulnerable in our communities," said United States Attorney Wigginton. The investigation began on January 14, 2011, when Niewegowski, who had been on mandatory supervised release since at least September 10, 2010, for a predatory criminal sexual assault conviction, which was the result of Niewegowski molesting a 5-year-old relative, was turned over to his parole officer after suspected child pornography was found on a printer in Niewegowski's parents' home on December 30, 2011. On January 15, 2011, a special federal officer with the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Springfield Child Exploitation Task Force seized numerous media devices from Niewegowski's camper trailer, which was parked next to his parents' home, as well as the laptop computer that Niewegowski could access in his parents' home. Among the items seized from the defendant's camper trailer was a PNY thumb drive. A forensic review of the seized laptop home revealed approximately 79 visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct that had been downloaded via the Internet. The PNY thumb drive was found to contain approximately 80 visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct that had been transferred to the thumb drive from the laptop computer. Several of the visual depictions possessed by Niewegowski contained images of prepubescent minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct as well as images of minors that depicted sadistic behavior. Evidence introduced at the Niewegowski's sentencing showed that another relative came forward after Niewegowski was charged with the molestation of the first relative and reported that Niewegowski began molesting him/her since he/she was 5 years old and that it lasted for years. He/she did not, however, want to discuss it with the police, thus no formal charges were filed against Niewegowski for this alleged molestation. In addition, while being transported back to an Illinois prison after violating the terms of his mandatory supervised release by viewing and downloading child pornography, Niewegowski told his parole officer that he began looking at pornography because he was lonely and that he was "doing some of the same things he did before he was charged the first time," with the molestation of his 5-year-old relative. Furthermore, during an interview by a FBI special agent, Niewegowski admitted that, once he found child pornography on the Internet, he could not stop himself from searching for and viewing child pornography. He said that he bought a thumb drive to use to save the images of child pornography because he was not always able to find it on the Internet. He would then take the images to his camper where he was able to view them through his television. Niewegowski stated that he had an interest in pedophilia and incest. This seems like beneficial evolution from central authority to multiple authorities, and in the future probably to the truly decentralized personal level, as technology advancements begin to support smaller entities controlling their own namespaces and the routing.

The Internet was never like broadcast ether, it was just presented that way. Imagine if the air was subject to the mechanics of the Internet: you talk to several people in the room, but some can't hear you, because the air operator didn't feel like it. You act surprised, indignant, and then you complain to the government. All because of your own ignorance about how the air works, and your own gullibility to buy into the air marketing. Internet is not like air, and will never be. Decentralization is a good thing, and the sooner the public perception of the Internet gets closer to reality, the better. Of course, the newly empowered fiefdoms will never agree to further delegate the authority to their subjects, but it will happen to them as it happened to ICANN. Expect to see the exodus of Internet luminaries parassing on the current centralized system into new subdomains. That's where the money is. I am blown away by my Rudder Craft composite rudder. While rigging on the trailer, I accidentally "let it go," swinging full-force onto concrete. There was only a very minor smudge, and no damage. While on a mooring, a gentleman-skipper reported that he was willing to replace or repair my rudder, which he apparently used as a fulcrum to turn his 26-footer during his gusty landing. His rail slid along my rudder for about 10-feet. Evidently as stranger on the dock grabbed a line and pulled on it prematurely, thinking they were helping him "land safely." My rudder was vulnerable in the full-up position. He assumed that he had ripped the pintles from the transom (of my IM Sanibel 18) internally, and ruined the SS rudder joint. That was far from the case. There was only a slight mark on the rudder, the joint plates rebounded, and no damage occurred to boat or systems. When discussing this experience directly with Rudder Craft, they suggested lightly sanding the smudge and 1/64th inch mark from the scrape ... That's it! IM had done a great job of reinforcing the pines, and Rudder Craft had built a dynamite rudder system for them to install for me. It has also been my experience that the rudder immediately retracts object, striking a shallow object, like when the skipper goes on the wrong side of an obstruction buoy. That is dumb, for sure; but, having the rudder neatly volunteer to lift while beaching is not. A storm system developing in the central Plains will draw moisture northward from the Gulf of Mexico setting the stage for thunderstorms in the eastern Plains to Mississippi River Valley on Thursday. Some of these storms could be severe with large hail, damaging winds and even isolated tornadoes. Farther north, heavy snow will fall in the Upper Midwest and Great Lakes through Thursday.

U.S. District Judge J. Frederick Motz sentenced Thomas Warren Stickney, age 22, of Timonium, Maryland, to-day to five years in prison, followed by 25 years of supervised release, for distribution of child pornography. Judge Motz ordered that upon his release from prison, Stickney must register as a sex offender in the place where he resides, where he is an employee, and where he is a student, under the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act (SORNA). The sentence was announced by United States Attorney for the District of Maryland Rod J. Rosenstein; Special Agent in Charge William Winter of U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement's (ICE) Homeland Security Investigations (HSI); Special Agent in Charge Stephen E. Vogt of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; Chief James W. Johnson of the Baltimore County Police Department; and Baltimore County State's Attorney Scott Shellenberger. According to Stickney's plea agreement, on December 13, 2012, Stickney sent an image and video, each depicting minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, to an individual with whom he was commu-

Thanks to the USDA, chickens could be killed in the United States, shipped to China for processing, and then sent back to the states for human consumption. If this sounds too inconvenient to ever actually take place, remember: the exact same thing has been happening in the fishing industry for years. Because the USDA won't require these China-processed chickens to be labeled, Americans will have no idea where the meat we buy in the store has been. And this should scare us -- China's food safety record is said to be decades behind the United States'. Dangerously high levels of mercury have been found in Chinese baby formula, and more than $1 million worth of rat and other small mammal meat has been sold to Chinese consumers as lamb. Plus, the country's chicken workers will likely be paid much less than workers in America -- meaning we'll be contributing to a culture of worker exploitation in addition to endangering our own health. There's no reason to make the meat industry even more tainted than it already is. Tell the government you don't want chicken bred or processed in China showing up in our supermarkets, restaurants or school lunches. Hi my dear friend, I hope you are having a great day! My friend, yesterday you might got notice from ebay which says your robe was already shipped out. My friend, i am so sorry that it was still not shipped because when we checked your robe before we ship it, we found there was mistake with the cuffs design. My friend, you required frog buttons at the cuffs, but our tailor mixed your order with another friend's robe. That friend doesnot want frog buttons at cuffs, but they made it to his robe. You do want the buttons, but they didnot make it. After we found that, i already asked our tailors to make new robes in right style for you and that friend. My friend, again we are so sorry for the inconvenience here. I asked our wudang partner to make the new robe and ship it to shaolin as soon as possible. So your robe is supposed to arrive the day after tomorrow, then we will check it and ship it out at once. My friend, i am so sorry for this and now i am worried do you need the robe in hurry? Thank you so much for your time and i hope to hear from you soon. Amituofu! Yours, Ella from shaolin, China I've been running into Ruffed Grouse lately but haven't heard any drumming. late summer and fall). The evident loss of political influence by the hegemonic nation over its neocolonies is an indication of the erosion of the neocolonial world-system. The national bourgeoisies of the neocolonies are no longer able to function as figurehead bourgeoisies able to manage and control popular demands. Ideological penetration by the neocolonial power has been undermined, as traditional political parties have become discredited, and new forms of popular democracy have emerged. And repression of the popular movements by the militaries of the neocolonies is not possible in the present political climate. A Baldwin, Illinois man was sentenced in federal district court on March 21, 2014, on a three-count indictment charging him with receipt of visual depictions of nicating online. The individual reported the incident to Baltimore County Police detectives, who assumed the online identity of the individual. In an undercover capacity, a Baltimore County Police detective communicated with Stickney and requested another video, which

Stickney supplied. Stickney then asked the detective to meet him for sexual purposes. The detective, still in an undercover capacity, informed Stickney that he would have to drop off his young nephew before he could meet with Stickney. Stickney suggested that the detective bring his nephew along so that they could engage in sexually explicit conduct with the nephew. Stickney was arrested when he arrived at a local motel for the meeting. A search recovered two condoms from Stickney's front pants pocket, as well as a cellular phone from the front console of the car and a laptop computer and external hard drive from a backpack on the front passenger seat. A search warrant was obtained for Stickney's car and residence. A subsequent forensic examination of the laptop, external hard drive, and other digital media seized from Stickney's home showed that there were approximately 14,350 images and 203 video files of minors, including prepubescent minors, engaged in sexually explicit conduct. These included depictions of sadistic and masochistic conduct or other depictions of violence. We service North America's top retailer and we are looking for a top copywriting talent. There can be little doubt about the centrality and severity of the environmental crisis in the present day. Driven by the mindless "grow-or-die" imperative of capitalism, humanity's destruction of the biosphere has reached and even surpassed various critical thresholds, whether in terms of carbon emissions, biodiversity loss, ocean acidification, freshwater depletion, or chemical pollution. Extreme weather events can be seen pummeling the globe, from the Philippines - devastated by Typhoon Haiyan in November of last year - to California, which is presently suffering from the worst drought in centuries. As Nafeez Ahmed has shown, a recently published study funded in part by NASA warns of impending civilizational collapse without radical changes to address social inequality and overconsumption. Truthout's own Dahar Jamail has written a number of critical pieces lately that have documented the profundity of the current trajectory toward anthropogenic climate disruption (ACD) and global ecocide: In a telling metaphor, he likens the increasingly mad weather patterns brought about by ACD to an electrocardiogram of a "heart in fibrillation." Members of the Khadia tribe were harassed and pressured for three years to leave their ancestral homeland, after it was turned into the Similipal Tiger Reserve. They now live in squalid conditions under plastic sheets.

The Heartbleed Bug is a serious vulnerability in the popular OpenSSL cryptographic software library. This weakness allows stealing the information protected, under normal conditions, by the SSL/TLS encryption used to secure the Internet. SSL/TLS provides communication security and privacy over the Internet for applications such as web, email, instant messaging (IM) and some virtual private networks (VPNs). The Heartbleed bug allows anyone on the Internet to read the memory of the systems protected by the vulnerable versions of the OpenSSL software. This compromises the secret keys used to identify the service providers and calculating the number. Before taxes, corporate profits accounted for 12.5 percent of the total economy, tying the previous record that was set in 1942, when World War II pushed up profits for many companies. But in 1942, most of those profits were taxed away. The effective corporate tax rate was nearly 55 percent, in sharp contrast to last year's figure of under 20 percent. Our Collective spared no effort to attack wholeheartedly the totalitarianism of Google, the platform where the world's information transits through. Yet one may also somehow position Google within the tradition of the Age of Enlightenment. Google pursues the old dream of global knowledge accessible to all who benefit from its benign and enlightened tyranny. To liberate the human being from her/his 'minority position' and making her/him more autonomous was the aim of Enlightenment, and one will surely gladly adhere to that ideal. But then, the dark side of Google is also the Enlightenment's dark side: its unrestrained display of scientific rationality, of technological advances, and of all myths that go with them. Ratio's regressive moment comes with the advent of the barbarity of total control, of human alienation - and of the life-world as a whole - all in the name of a machinic religion. There is no doubt that Google represents the icon of the megamachine in all its positive and negative aspects. Google develops innovative algorithms and filters providing snappy search results, as outcome of scientific research and technical invention. Yet Google's contents are not solely the offshoot of profiling its users, they are also, and even mostly so, the result of a creative tension born out of a stock of freely available information resources, (but) this within the limits of a freedom to access which is managed by a technical subject - and thus not by the users (themselves) - who intends not to be malevolent (the famous "/Don't be evil"/ motto), all this within the context of a capitalist 'free market'. Mollie Halpern: As a record number of Americans study abroad, the FBI warns students of the risks of becoming a target of foreign intelligence services. images on his cell phone and computers. On November 4, 2012, the Baltimore Police Department received information that images and videos of child pornography were observed on David Fisher's external hard drive at his residence. The external hard drive was provided to police. Many files depicting minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct were found. A search warrant was subsequently executed at David Fisher's residence on November 20, 2012, and computers, cell phones, and other items were seized. Sexually explicit e-mail messages with attachments were recovered in which Fisher solicited child pornography from other individuals and shared child pornography from his collection. Also, in February 2013, law enforcement confirmed that some of the sexually explicit images found on David's computer and cell phone were images of the two minor girls that Lori Fisher had photographed and sent to David. In all, over 2,200 images and 100 videos of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, including prepubescent minors, were recovered. On March 14, 2013, a Baltimore Police detective working undercover contacted David Fisher on Facebook, posing as a 14-year-old female. Between March 14 and April 11, 2013, David Fisher communicated with the undercover detective through Facebook and e-mail, often using a computer at a public library because of law enforcement's seizure of his home computer. David Fisher asked the undercover detective to send him sexually explicit photos and sent the undercover detective sexually explicit photographs of himself. Fisher also gave the undercover detective his cell phone number and proposed meeting to engage in sexual activity. A meeting was arranged for April 11, 2013. Fisher was arrested when he arrived at the meeting. Lori Fisher, age 46, of St. Cloud, Florida, and formerly of Bel Air, Maryland, previously pleaded guilty to distribution of child pornography and faces a minimum of five years and a maximum of 20 years in prison at her sentencing scheduled for June 11, 2014 at 9:30 a.m. As part of her plea agreement, Lori Fisher will be required to register as a sex offender in the place where she resides, where she is an employee, and where she is a student, under the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act (SORNA). Hello new friend Please do not be surprised with my message. I know we have a purpose in life - we love and care. I saw your profile on a dating site and a month ago. Unfortunately I do not remember his name since I visited a lot of places at the time. And now, I thought, and decided to write you. My name Maria, I'm from Greece. I send you my picture for you to know who you wrote. I hope that you are interested in this knowledge, and you answer me. With your permission, in the next letter I will tell you more about me. Your new friend Maria. The first BROWN-HEADED COWBIRD I've seen at my feeder in years appeared this morning. The LINCOLN'S SPARROW that arrived a few days ago is still here. EURASIAN COLLARED-DOVES have been in and out of the neighborhood for a while. This morning I saw two of them in my yard at my feeder area for the first time. Some of the wintering zonotrichias are still around, including four WHITE-THROATED SPARROWS. U.S. Attorney William J. Hochul, Jr. announced today that a federal grand jury in Rochester has returned a four-count indictment charging Shannon Lewis, 40, of Elmira, New York, with producing images of child pornography. The charges carry a mandatory minimum penalty of 15 years in prison, a maximum penalty of 30 years, a fine of $250,000 or both. Assistant U.S. Attorney Marisa J. Miller, who is handling the case, stated that according to the indictment, the defendant videotaped a child engaged in sexually explicit conduct. Specifically, Lewis is charged with filming the child while he and another adult male abused the child. okay I understand if you really don't have a card or whatever..... there is another site which just asks for email and name its this one here: <http://sweetypromiles.com/katiepage69>. They also do screening of their members so what you can do is go on there then send me your number and I'll call you. Once I see your msg on there I'll know you passed their screening my username is katiepage69.

son admitted that on December 7, 2012, he made available for others to download via an online peer-to-peer, file-sharing network images and videos of child sexual abuse that were stored on his home computer. An undercover law enforcement agent successfully downloaded from Johnson one image and 14 videos of child sexual abuse via the file sharing network. As part of his guilty plea, Johnson agreed to forfeit the computers and computer accessories he used to commit the offense. He will also be required to register as a sex offender. In addition to the prison term, Judge Wigenton sentenced Johnson to serve five years of supervised release and pay restitution of $13,500. U.S. Attorney Fishman credited special agents of the FBI's Child Exploitation Task Force, under the direction of Special Agent in Charge Aaron T. Ford in Newark, and the Cranford Police Department with the investigation leading to today's guilty plea. The government is represented by Assistant U.S. Attorney Danielle Alfonso Walsman of the U.S. Attorney's Office Criminal Division in Newark. In the past weeks, North Korean state media have called the female President of South Korea a "dirty political harlot" and an "old prostitute"; the gay chairman of the U.N. Commission of Inquiry on North Korea "a disgusting old lecher with 40-odd-year-long career of homosexuality"; and, in a loathsome screed, referred to U.S. President Barack Obama as a "monkeyish human monstrosity." As of May 6, 2014, nearly 15 percent of United States was gripped by extreme to exceptional drought, according to U.S. Drought Monitor. Half of the United States was experiencing at least some level of drought. The summer season is just beginning but dry conditions are already making a serious impact on fruit and vegetable agriculture in California. News reports sounded the alarm for grains and livestock in the Plains and South Central West. Why does the richest nation in the world have so many children afflicted with ADHD, conduct disorders, depression, "spectrum" disorders, oppositional defiant disorder, mixed manias, social phobia and bipolar disorder? Because children are good customers.

Wearing the "V for Vendetta"-inspired Guy Fawkes masks of the Occupy movement, a group of 50 activists in Italy cut through barbed wire to enter the Fontega US army base on May 1. They filmed themselves scattering marijuana seeds (as well as a few corn and tomato seeds) around the compound. According to a press release, the rogue gardeners were part of Italy's No Dal Molin movement and their actions were in protest of violent U.S. policies. They planted 200,000 seeds in all, "to liberate our land from the foundations of war." The statement speaks up against the failed U.S. war on drugs and corrupt U.S. policies at large. It seems India is about to finally push up the plan to bring at least minimal electricity to 400 million of their citizens still without power. With population of over 1.2 billion their new energy plan is described as second green revolution, the first being agricultural advances

With extremely high energy demand throughout the country they will still have to invest in other forms of power generation (primarily coal) but solar energy is finally getting a push in the right direction. Ushio Shrine was the last shrine I visited before heading over the pass out of the Hi watershed. It is named after the Ushio clan who had a small "castle" on top of the mountain behind the shrine. They were vassals of the Amago. It is yet another shrine in the area that is listed in both the Izumo Fudoki, and the Engi Shiki. The main kami enshrined here is Unojihiko, the same kami. The NWS Storm Prediction Center (SPC) in Norman, Oklahoma expects a slight risk of severe weather on Saturday. Did you get it? just a few days ago we said that sometimes we get a word of knowledge from the Holy Spirit. This has happened a few times while we are praying for you the past few days. When the Holy Spirit moves this word of knowledge came in strong and fast for you and your family. God has shared with me while in pray for you through the Holy Spirit how He is moving you into a new position where You are going to be the living proof that God honors His Holy Word and you will be living in His over abundance with your every need met by Him. God is doing this for you because you will be blessed in a massive way, so will be able share and tell everybody around you that God blesses you in everything you put your hands to. You will be a living testament of God's love and blessings for every one that comes in contact with you! This is also a reminder about the prayer request that we received for you and I want share with you so you can know more about the prayers that have been made for you. God is leading me to know exactly what is the spiritual darkness from hell is causing the all of your frustration, pain and hurt that keeps coming at you again and again. It's really is holding you back and your family too, from achieving all of your heart's desires. While I have been in prayer am being led by the Holy Spirit so that I know exactly how to stop it and get it away from you. I'm praying for you in Jesus name that the Angels of God are with you at all times. You Are Not Alone a prayer request that was emailed to us to pray for you, has me so moved that for the next 30 days both me and Linda-one of our very special volunteer prayer warriors who lives on a small farm in Switzerland with her husband, 4 dogs and a guinea pig named Goose. Linda has an amazing supernatural anointing from God when she prays for people's problems, wants and needs, so both her and I will pray and mediate on the Word of God that you quickly receive God's blessing and to break the yoke of spiritual darkness of what is causing the all of this spiritual pain and hurt that keeps coming at you. This darkness from hell that is also holding back from so much like the massive out pouring of God's favor and blessing into both you and your family's lives; We will keep this prayer vigilance for you and lighting prayer candles and keep them lighted during the next thirty days as a strong point of contact between us as a constant reminder that Jesus is the light of the world and our Lord and Savior who will give his life by dying on the cross so that we could live by taking us away from the darkness of hell. I also want you to know you get miracles from God not by just lighting a candle but by having someone like myself and Linda come into agreement with the word of God praying in Jesus' Name. You need people who stand strong unshakable faith like Linda and I praying with a special prayer anointing from God and who have made a promise to Him like we have for you, to pray for you hours upon hours for many many days pouring there heart out for you in strong and faithful intercessory prayer and spending a lot of time in prayer doing it for you. You need more than someone just lighting candles for you and your loved ones because it takes a massive amount of prayer. You may be asking why is this going to work for me and my love ones this time or in the past when my prayers not answered by God? This will work in Jesus' Name, because you are not alone we are being led by the Holy Spirit for you and we spend a lot of time in this kind of powerful prayer for you and your loved ones believing God is making miracles happen for you and breaking this darkness and negativity from hell that is around you and your family's situation. It is exactly what's causing all of you and your family's problems both in the past and in the here and now. Do you realize that there is a massive out pouring of God's favor and blessing ready to suddenly spring forth in both you and your family's lives? I am very happy that the Holy Spirit has move within me that you are not alone and I will pay for the candles and I will keep them lighted for the thirty days of prayer for you! These candles will be our holy and sacred point of contact with both you and your loved ones and represent to us that Jesus is our Lord and Savior and He is the one true light of the world you are not alone. It's my honor to have made this commitment both to you & your loved ones- And to the Lord our God. I am paying for these candles as a way of sharing with you and giving an offering to God. The candles are made from a blend of beeswax from Israel the holy land. During the next thirty days it will take at least five candles to keep them lighted for you and your loved ones over the 30 days of prayer. Again, I am paying for the cost for five of these candles is $47.53 for you and your family.

Every transfer of Bitcoin as Nakamoto designed the system offers the possibility to track the economic activity and associations of anyone using Bitcoin -- as Barber et al. note, "all Bitcoins are public knowledge". As a surveillance apparatus, it is difficult to imagine a more perfect way to monitor how citizens behave than to link transaction histories to the currency itself. Even peer-to-peer exchanges that would be beyond oversight with a traditional currency become subject to precise scrutiny. In attempting to remove the third party (bank/government) from the exchange process, Bitcoin instead enshrines the authority it attempts to displace. I am an artist IQQking for work! Two growhouse busts this week at empty Golden Gate Estates homes turned up 176 marijuana plants, Collier sheriff's deputies said Thursday. Deputies executing search warrants found the plants behind the homes located at 2770 Desoto Blvd. S. and 4019 22nd Ave. N.E. The Sheriff's Office, which values each plant at $3,000, said the plants had a combined street value estimated at $528,000. Deputies searched the Desoto Boulevard South home Tuesday, finding 95 plants and growing equipment valued at about $30,000 in a large metal structure behind the home. One day later, deputies searched the 22nd Avenue Northeast home, finding a recently dismantled metal structure. Behind the structure, investigators found a large pile of dirt used to cover 81 marijuana plants. Inside the home, two firearms and a sophisticated surveillance system were found. Nobody was found at either home, and sheriff's officials didn't indicate any arrests had been made. Only authorized personnel will reside or visit in the dormitory. No room assignment change is permitted without prior approval of the Academy staff. Requests for changes in room assignment must be submitted in writing to the Class Training Coordinator. The Training Supervisor will meet with the facilities management team to determine feasibility of the move. Posting of items on any walls, windows, or doors is prohibited. Refrigerators, ice chests, or other cooling/heating devices are not permitted within dormitory rooms (only agency-approved irons and ironing boards are allowed within dorm rooms). The only exception to this is for those individuals that require a small refrigeration unit to maintain proper temperature of medications. This type of device can be checked out from Dorm Reception. Shoes and belts must be polished outside the building, off the sidewalks, or in marked and designated shoeshine areas (2nd and 3rd floor storage rooms designated for this purpose). Due to fire code regulations, the use of electrical appliances such as coffeepots or microwaves is strictly prohibited. Residents are required to keep housing areas clean at all times. Clothing and personal items will be arranged neatly in closets or cabinets and beds shall be made. Staff will be conducting random and scheduled room inspections. DPSST staff may only conduct more intrusive searches of student property with approval of the Director of Training. These searches may be conducted pursuant to, or as part of, an investigation into any Rules of Conduct violation. Whenever possible, the Training Supervisor, and the student(s) will be present while the search is conducted. Any investigation involving criminal allegations will be referred to the Oregon State Police or local law enforcement. Students are required to report, in writing, any damaged or missing items. Reports will include the item, damage, or reason for malfunction, if known. Reports are to be turned in no later than the training day following the day the damage or missing items are noted. Students responsible for damage will be required to pay for the repair or replacement of the item. The students agency will be billed, and the Academy completion certificate will be withheld, if timely payment is not received. Visitors are permitted in the common areas only until 2100 hours. Visitors are not permitted in any of the dormitory living units. Visitors will be required to sign in at the Dormitory reception desk where a guest book is maintained at the check-in counter, and provide identity upon request of security or other Academy staff. Furthermore, of students receiving visitors must remain with their guests at all times. Visitors are not allowed any place on Academy grounds unescorted. Students of the opposite sex are strictly prohibited from entering or remaining in the room of another student or staff person, regardless of invitation by the resident or purpose other than a documented bona fide emergency of a life threatening nature. Sexual conduct in public areas, parking lots and or vehicles on the DPSST premises or facilities is prohibited. Alcohol is not permitted anywhere within the dormitory or on DPSST premises. Controlled substances (prescription medications) are permitted only when kept in the original container from the pharmacy. Smoking is prohibited in the dormitory. Smoking is permitted outside the dormitory in designated areas only. Students are required to use the available ash can to extinguish and dispose of cigarettes or other tobacco products. Effective January 1, 2013, DPSST will be a tobacco free campus. Firearms/ammunition permitted on the second and third floors of the dormitory or on the first floor wings where living units are located. Firearms and ammunition must be stored in locked gun cabinets provided by the DPSST for that purpose. Under certain pre-approved circumstances, staff, instructors, or visiting staff may be armed within the dormitory reception, hallways, and student lounge areas. Violation of this policy will be considered a major violation that may result in removal from the dormitory and termination from the Academy. This policy applies to students, instructors and visiting staff. DPSST staff will conduct an exit inspection of each room on the final day of training. Students must be cleared out of assigned rooms, with keys turned into the dormitory checkin desk by the time designated by the Class Training Coordinator on the day of graduation. Individual students and/or their agency will be responsible for missing items or damage beyond normal wear and tear. All students of a room will share financial responsibility if investigation cannot attribute the responsibility to a specific individual or individuals. Unreported damage or items discovered as missing are the responsibility of room students. Students shall use the telephones located in the hallway near the elevators/stairs for emergency calls (to 9-1-1) or local calls only. Students shall only use these phones for a maximum of fifteen (15) minutes on any single call. Courtesy and fairness are expected from each student regarding the use of phones. Students are responsible for any damage to the area surrounding the telephones, including shoe/scarf marks left on the wall by students propping or resting their feet. Students are expected to pick up after themselves and maintain a clean area, regardless of their location in the building. Students will strive to leave any location as clean, or cleaner, than when they arrived. Students are prohibited from engaging in loud or boisterous behavior that disturbs, annoys, or causes inconvenience to any other person. Sexual conduct in public areas, parking lots and or vehicles on the DPSST premises or facilities is prohibited. Alcohol is not permitted anywhere within the dormitory or on DPSST premises. Controlled substances (prescription medications) are permitted only when kept in the original container from the pharmacy. Smoking is prohibited in the dormitory. Smoking is permitted outside the dormitory in designated areas only. Students are required to use the available ash can to extinguish and dispose of cigarettes or other tobacco products. Effective January 1, 2013, DPSST will be a tobacco free campus. Firearms/ammunition permitted on the second and third floors of the dormitory or on the first floor wings where living units are located. Firearms and ammunition must be stored in locked gun cabinets provided by the DPSST for that purpose. Under certain pre-approved circumstances, staff, instructors, or visiting staff may be armed within the dormitory reception, hallways, and student lounge areas. Violation of this policy will be considered a major violation that may result in removal from the dormitory and termination from the Academy. This policy applies to students, instructors and visiting staff. DPSST staff will conduct an exit inspection of each room on the final day of training. Students must be cleared out of assigned rooms, with keys turned into the dormitory checkin desk by the time designated by the Class Training Coordinator on the day of graduation. Individual students and/or their agency will be responsible for missing items or damage beyond normal wear and tear. All students of a room will share financial responsibility if investigation cannot attribute the responsibility to a specific individual or individuals. Unreported damage or items discovered as missing are the responsibility of room students. Students shall use the telephones located in the hallway near the elevators/stairs for emergency calls (to 9-1-1) or local calls only. Students shall only use these phones for a maximum of fifteen (15) minutes on any single call. Courtesy and fairness are expected from each student regarding the use of phones. Students are responsible for any damage to the area surrounding the telephones, including shoe/scarf marks left on the wall by students propping or resting their feet. Students are expected to pick up after themselves and maintain a clean area, regardless of their location in the building. Students will strive to leave any location as clean, or cleaner, than when they arrived. Students are prohibited from engaging in loud or boisterous behavior that disturbs, annoys, or causes inconvenience to any other person. smarter, not just harder Tributes to Precarious Vitality strikes up a dialogue between 17th-century artworks and contemporary pieces in an attempt to extricate the concept of the Baroque from its conventional stylistic pigeonhole, moving away from clichés such as pomp, rich ornament, or gold and instead focusing on the Baroque as a "tribute to precarious vitality": the riotous yet uncertain nature of existence. * Arizona Consolidated Services Launches Quality Spring AC Tune up Services At $34.95 * All Around Roofing, Inc. * Getting exposed to toxic waste hampers kid's health - jelly-pharmacy.com * Craft Beer Magazine is Covering the Revolution of American Craft Beer * Moving? Science and Technology serves museums in a variety of ways: from the technical examination of artist's methods and materials; to informing decisions on safer ways to exhibit, store, and transport art; and finally to investigating new conservation methods that are safer or more effective. All museums benefit from the application of science in some way.

Modern and contemporary art poses specific challenges for two different reasons: the media the artists can draw from is more varied than any other period in history and the works are all young in age. These aspects can make a conservator's job easy or extremely difficult. They can also help improve our understanding of how works by Old Masters may have changed. Since conservators of contemporary art are often the first to treat an object it is particularly important that treatments are always carefully considered and well informed and science can play a major role in that regard.

She chooses her words carefully A knife-wielding bandit slashed a young Hamilton soldier's hand as the trooper tried to hold onto $4,500 cash intended for Canadian military families. Hamilton police said the soldier was robbed as he left his home on Erie

Avenue at 10 a.m. Thursday. The 22-year-old was confronted by a "scraggly-looking" man who asked for money, then pulled a knife. In the fight that followed, the soldier was cut and dropped a pouch containing the cash, which the bandit grabbed. "The suspect looked inside and then ran off," said police Sergeant Terri-Lynn Collings. The victim who was wearing a Help For Heroes t-shirt was said to have been attacked by two men armed with knives, including a machete and a meat cleaver. What questions do you have about the job? Why

Tell us about your favorite pet; hobby; and food-group! Gentlemen: Has there been any indication from your readers of the scarcity of butterflies this year? In this area which is usually quite prolific, I have seen practically none with the exception of a few flights of Fritillaries. Since March I have seen but one example of an Apantesis virgo, no Catocala caras at all, very few Swallowtails, one Queloia, no Peacock's Eyes, no Hipposcatics, and not even a single Red Admiral in my garden, which last summer was teeming with butterflies. I wonder if this scarcity is widespread, and if so, what is the cause of it? M. Wasbourn We stand helpless before the corporate onslaught. There is no way to vote against corporate power. Citizens have no way to bring about the prosecution of Wall Street bankers and financiers for fraud, military and intelligence officials for torture and war crimes, or security and surveillance officers for human rights abuses. The Federal Reserve is reduced to printing money for banks and financiers and lending it to them at almost zero percent interest; corporate officers then lend it to us at usurious rates as high as 30 percent. I do not know what to call this system. It is certainly not capitalism. Extortion might be a better word. The fossil fuel industry, meanwhile, relentlessly trashes the ecosystem for profit. The melting of 40 percent of the summer Arctic sea ice is, to corporations, a business opportunity. Companies rush to the Arctic and extract the last vestiges of oil, natural gas, minerals and fish stocks, indifferent to the death pangs of the planet. Your request to the SPEC-

On May 10, Ros Montt, 86, was found guilty by a three-panel tribunal on charges of genocide and crimes against humanity, and sentenced to 80 years in the slammer; he is the first former head of state in the Americas to stand trial for genocide. But it turns out that if you remove the "and energy," the numbers are actually pretty depressing. The University of Colorado's Center for Science & Technology Research monitors mentions of "global warming" and "climate change" in five major U.S. newspapers: The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post, the Los Angeles Times, and USA Today. Check out the following sad graph showing its latest findings: The final numbers for the year are in and NY Times climate coverage -- stories in which the words "global warming" or "climate change" appeared -- has plummeted more than 40 percent. That is a bigger drop than any of the other newspapers monitored by the University of Colorado, though the Washington Post's coverage dropped by a third, no doubt driven in part by its mind-boggling decision to take its lead climate reporter, Juliet Eilperin, off the environment beat. And remember, this drop happened from levels of climate coverage that were already near a historical low and in a year that was HUGE on climate news. We've had devastating extreme weather around the planet. In May, CO2 levels in the air passed the 400 parts per million threshold for the first time in millions of years. In June, President Obama announced his Climate Action Plan. And in September, the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) released its latest alarming review of the scientific literature. Storey when an image traceable to an address where he babysat was recovered during a child pornography investigation in Georgia. The image was of a 3-and-a-half year old prepubescent male who was naked from the waist down and had an adult male's hand in the picture. Agents obtained a search warrant for Storey's apartment and conducted preliminary forensic exams of some items of computer equipment where they found images of child erotica and child pornography. The FBI arrested Storey on January 8 based on a criminal complaint. He has been in custody since his arrest.

The indictment charges Storey with one count of production of child pornography, punishable by at least 15 and up to 30 years in prison, and one count of possession of child pornography, punishable by up to 10 years in prison. U.S. District Judge Timothy Corrigan yesterday sentenced Randy Michael Jackson (40, Orange Park) to seven years in federal prison for receipt of child pornography. Jackson was indicted on February 20, 2013. He pleaded guilty to the offense on July 15, 013. According to court documents, in February 2013, special agents with the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) executed a search warrant at Jackson's home in Orange Park and seized his computer. A forensic review of Jackson's computer revealed that he had downloaded approximately 25,000 images and 500 hundred videos of children, as young as toddlers, engaged in sexually explicit conduct with adults. This case was investigated by Federal Bureau of Investigation. It was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Malisa Chokshi. "Security," the handmaiden of paranoia, is slowly invading every venue in America. If you thought the tentacles of Homeland Security were going to stay confined to the airport, you're dreaming. And if you think the latest rules and regs in the War on Terror are going to be contained, I have a bridge to sell you. Major League Baseball has announced that all of its ballparks have to implement "enhanced" security screening by 2015. The procedures have already been tested in several places before a national roll-out. Gee, what does that remind me of? The new regs, which were, of course, designed in consultation with the Department of Homeland Security, require that all fans must pass through a metal detector and/or be wanded. Bank executives haven't been held liable for Wall Street crime. They haven't been prosecuted, which means they haven't been held criminally liable. They haven't been personally fined, which means they haven't been held financially liable. They've all been allowed to keep criminally-obtained wealth. And, outside of grassroots outrage like the Occupy movement, they haven't even been held morally or socially responsible for their misdeeds. Public rebukes or shaming have been rare. 36th division General Ma Fuyuan led a Chinese Muslim army to storm Kashgar on February 6, 1934, and attacked the Uighur and Kirghiz rebels of the First East Turkestan Republic. He freed another 36th division general, Ma Zhancang, who was trapped with his Chinese Muslim and Han Chinese troops in Kashgar New City by the Uighurs and Kirghiz since May 22, 1933. In January, 1934, Ma Zhancang's Chinese Muslim troops repulsed six Uighur attacks, launched by Khoja Niyaz, who arrived at the city on January 13, 1934, inflicting massive casualties on the Uighur forces.[54] From 2,000 to 8,000 Uighur civilians in Kashgar Old City were massacred by

This gentlemen claimed to be your representative, and this power of attorney stated that you are dead. PLEASE VIEW ATTACHMENT FOR DETAILS. Exploitation at the work place. Keeping the pay for workers as low as possible is an inherent part of running a business and making a profit: the lower wages are, the higher profits are. Employers are "job creators" only against their will; the fewer workers they need use to produce a different product or service, the better off the employer is. The high pay for business executives and dividends to shareholders are directly at the expense of the workers in their businesses.

Exploitation at the consumption end. Increasing the demand for ever more consumer goods, of course necessarily paid for out of wages, increases the profits of the producers of those goods and the wealth of the owners of the firms that produce them. Inducing demand artificially, through advertising and the wide array of cultural patterns of the kinds long documented by sociologists and economists, supports the consumption exploitation of poor (as well as middle class) consumers, to the benefit of the rich. Exploitation at the financial end. Where, after all, do extraordinary profits of hedge fund managers and bankers come from? Ultimately, of course, from the prices paid by the purchasers of the goods and services they are financing. Their interest and dividend incomes and high salaries are really based on the profits of those making their money from more direct exploitation of the poor. Exploitation of the benefits of land ownership, an obvious and pervasive monopoly, paid, as economists put it, by rent not for anything that the recipient of rent payments has produced or done, but solely extracted by him through the possession of something in limited supply for which there is demand. Property owners and developers are among the richest of the rich (think Donald Trump), in large part because they are able to benefit from the speculative increases in the prices of land which they own. Ultimately, those benefits are paid for in the prices consumers pay and the rents that tenants pay, a regressively distributive system enriching land owners at the expense of all others. All four of these forms of exploitation are among the primary causes of poverty and, centrally, inequality. The most important dilemma facing us is not ideological. It is logistical. The security and surveillance state has made its highest priority the breaking of any infrastructure that might spark widespread revolt. The state knows the tinder is there. It knows that the continued unraveling of the economy and the effects of climate change make popular unrest inevitable. It knows that as underemployment and unemployment doom at least a quarter of the U.S. population, perhaps more, to perpetual poverty, and as unemployment benefits are scaled back, as schools close, as the middle class withers away, as pension funds are looted by hedge fund thieves, and as the government continues to let the fossil fuel industry ravage the planet, the future will increasingly be one of open conflict. This battle against the corporate state, right now, is primarily about infrastructure. We need an infrastructure to build revolt. The corporate state is determined to deny us one. The state, in its internal projections, has a vision of the future that is as dystopian as mine. But the state, to protect itself, lies. Knowledge, Skills & Abilities: Working knowledge in developing, designing, and maintaining websites using Dreamweaver. Ability to coordinate events, which necessitate liaison with community, catering services, guest artists, and campus personnel. Knowledge of all standard office equipment and procedures; knowledge of Microsoft Word and Excel also desired for normal office operations. Some background in visual arts or other cultural fields preferable. Extensive experience in desktop design/publishing using Adobe Photoshop, InDesign, Acrobat, and Dreamweaver, as well as a working knowledge of commercial printing. Excellent interpersonal, writing, and speaking skills required. Working knowledge of Mac computers, Epson desktop printers including large format, scanners, digital cameras, and projectors. Experience with audio-visual equipment desired. Ability to communicate with an ethnically and culturally diverse campus community. Ability to follow all university policies, procedures, and guidelines including but not limited to safety, civility, information security, and non-discrimination policies and procedures. Ability to contribute to a positive university experience for each and every student, and assist in achieving the university's commitment to a "vision of excellence." Hi! I liked your profile very much and I decided to write you a letter. My name is Tatyana. I live in Russia in Samara. My picture is applied to my email, I believe you will like my photo. I am 28 years old, I have a birthday on the 10th of June. I am 165 cm tall and weight 51 kg. I am very attentive to my looks. I am fond of gym, it helps to keep myself in shape. It's so important for me. I am a shop assistant in a perfume boutique. I sell perfume and cosmetic products to shoppers. I have a degree in Marketing and Advertising Business. I like to talk with different people and I like the staff in the shop. I live in a flat together with my sister. Many people in our country live in apartments. My parents live far from us in a country house, they enjoy the quiet and fresh air. I love my parents. They raised me very well. Please, tell me something about your relatives. I would like to find my beloved. I would like to have stable relations and to have a good and strong family where the relationships are based on love, understanding, respect, friendship and trust. It's very important for me. I would like to meet a man who will be happy with me and will support me in difficult moments. I have never communicated with people from knowledge countries. It will be great to hear some facts about you, your parents and your lifestyle. It's time to complete my letter. I hope you will react to my message seriously. I hope it was interesting for you to hear some information about me. I look forward to your email. Good luck! Answer me at my e-mail. Yours respectfully, Tatyana beautifuljasmin28@yahoo.com The people of Angola are stoics. They have a deep understanding of patience, and avoid blaming the difficulties the country faces on the fact that there was war. In fact, Angolans behave as if there was no war although it is deeprooted in every Angolan. Music is the heart and soul of every Angolan, it can be heard anywhere and they use anything as an excuse to party. The country has a wide range of music, mainly Kuduro, Kizomba, Semba, and Tarrachinha, the latter being more sensual than all the others. In all, it is safe to say that Angolans are fun and loving people with a thirst for more of what life has to give. Arthur Gregg Hutchins, 67, under supervised release for a previous conviction of possessing child pornography, has been ordered to prison again, announced United States Attorney Kenneth Magidson. Hutchins was previously convicted in 2005 and released from prison in 2012. He was under supervised release when he pleaded guilty to one count of possession of child pornography on June 24, 2013. Following a lengthy hearing yesterday, Senior U.S. District Judge Hayden Head considered Hutchins' demonstrated recidivism and the need to protect the public and ordered him to federal prison for 188 months. The sentence will be served concurrently to a five-year term of imprisonment ordered for the revocation of his supervised release in 2005 release. He will also serve a new lifetime term of supervised release following his release, during which he will have to comply with numerous conditions designed to restrict his access to children and the Internet. In handing down the sentence, the court noted that Hutchins presents a real and ongoing danger to the children of our community. The court considered the evidence seized in the case-the child pornography as well as written communications between Hutchins and other pedophiles. In those e-mails, Hutchins claimed to have himself been sexually assaulted, claimed to have personally sexually assaulted children in the past, and expressed a desire to sexually assault children in the future. Hutchins claimed that such writings were nothing more than fantasy. However, the judge rebuffed that denial and stated that society was entitled to take him at his word that he is a person who has and is capable of sexually assaulting children. The court further noted that his almost immediate return to child pornography following his release from prison in June 2012 was a strong indication that he is likely to reoffend. Hutchins came to the attention of law enforcement from a CyberTip received by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC) regarding a person who had posted child pornography images online beginning in September 2012. The images were posted to a popular online photo sharing website by a person using an IP address linked to the Corpus Christi area. The IP address was later traced to the wife of Hutchins. Under supervised release and forbidden to reside near a school, Hutchins did not reside with his wife. The investigation was able to exclude the wife due to her work schedule and conflicting times associated with the online postings of child pornography. An investigation into his online activities and financial transactions led to his identification of the one responsible for the postings. At the time of his plea, he admitted to possessing images of child pornography he acquired from the Internet. five hundred thousand dollars, part of what I and my late husband labored during our time together Because I am so weak and fragile to do things myself, I indulge your full assistant. You should email the followings in your reply message to me: Your Full Names & Address, Direct Telephone number and your direct email address if available Kindly get back to me; for me to tell you more about myself and the humanitarian work. Yours sincerely, Mrs. Jessica Peters Dear Sir, I am Yusuf Ahmed, a Syrian citizen, residing in London. My father was killed in Homs city of Syria and his business office burnt down because of his support to the rebels (The Syrian National Council) who is currently fighting to liberate the good people of Syria from the misrule of President Bashar AL- Assad. The rebel leaders have tried all they could to persuade President Bashar AL- Assad to conduct a free and all inclusive election but he refused and decided to go to war against the citizens he is pretending to govern. If President Bashar AL- Assad thinks that he is popular, he would have accepted to have a transitional committee and general election will be conducted and who wins will at-least bring peace to Syria.

Anyway, let me not take your time with the situation in Syria as my family was mostly affected. I lost my father- Sheik Abu Ibrahim Ahmed, his company in Damascus and most of the family's asset because the forces royal to President Bashar AL- Assad claimed that my father is supporting and financing the rebels and as such, I had to escape Syria with my wife and children to Lebanon and from there to London where my father had huge sum of money in London bank which was formerly frozen but were recently lifted by the British government, so that I can invest the funds with overseas partners because in Syria the political turmoil appeared to be continued for a long time. Honestly, I want to invest and make use of the money in your country, as we all are aware that the crisis still continues in Syria and I cannot also invest in UK due to their double-tax regime. There are two options by which this transaction can be delivered. The funds can be wired from Barclays Bank Plc London to your account or can be delivered in cash by a financial diplomat to your country and I can assure you that the transaction is a hitch-free type. Please let me know the method by-which you can work with us, so that we can commence action. Please feel free to contact me Let me stop here, hoping that you will respond promptly. Thanks for your anticipated cooperation. Regards, Yusuf Ahmed Three deaths and over 500 injuries in 29 prefectures have been blamed on a potent winter storm that has rolled across Japan today. This storm one of the strongest in recent memory has broken heavy snowfall records up and down the coastline. In Nagano Prefecture 3 women died and one man was seriously injured following a traffic accident this morning. Many of the injuries that occurred throughout the day were either due to traffic accidents or people falling on slick surfaces. This was the common reason in the down town Tokyo area today. Down Town Tokyo recorded a record breaking amount of snowfall Saturday with a total of 25cm accumulating in the Metro area. Rail Ways, highways and both airports responded with numerous delays or in Narita's case straight up becoming closed. Inside Pelican Bay's SHU, people are locked into windowless cells for at least 22 hours a day. Prison administrators place them in the SHU either for a fixed term for violating a prison rule or an indeterminate term for gang membership. Accusations of gang membership often relied on confidential informants and circumstantial evidence. Accusations of gang association were also based on circumstantial evidence, such as possessing certain artwork or books (including Aztec or Black history), exercising with others or even signing a group petition. Hundreds of people have been confined within the SHU for over a decade. Until recently, the only way to be released from the SHU was to be debrief, or provide information incriminating other prisoners, who are then placed in the SHU for an indeterminate sentence. My Dearest Friend, I am MR. PAUL MADDI, The chief auditor in bank of Africa (boa) Burkina Faso West African, One of our customers, with his entire family was among the victims of plane crash and before his death, he has an account with us valued at $27.2million (twenty-seven million two hundred thousand us dollars) in our bank and according to the Burkina Faso law, at the expiration of Ten years if nobody applies to claim the funds a grace of one year also will be given before the money will revert to the ownership of the Burkina Faso government. My proposals is that i will like as a foreigner to stand in as the next of kin or distant cousin for us to claim this money, so that the fruits of this old mans labour will not get into the hands of some corrupt government officials who will later use the money to sponsor war in Africa and kill innocent citizens in the search for political power. As a foreign partner which this money will be transfer into your account, you are entitle to 40% of the total money while 55% will be for me as the moderator of this transaction and 5% will be mapped out for any expenditure that may be incur during the course of this transaction. Please note that there will be no problem as my bank has made all effort through to reach for any of his relation but all was fruitless. My position as the chief auditor in this bank guarantees the successful execution of this transaction. Please send the following. Attention pls, Firstly, I must solicit your confidence in this transaction, Although Let me start by introducing myself properly to you. I am Ahmed M Kuruma, the Manager with Ghana International Bank Plc London. I need a reliable and honest person to handle a very confidential transaction, which involves transfer of a huge sum of money to a foreign account. A foreigner, (LATE ENGR NAZIR ZOHOOR) an oil Merchant /contractor with the Government of Ghana, until his death some years ago in a ghastly air crash, banked with us here a closing balance of USD$10.2M (Ten Million, Two Hundred Thousand United States Dollars) which the bank now expects to free involvement. Your share would be 30% of the total amount $10.2m. While the rest 70% would be for my investment in your country. Kindly get back to me immediately. The Portland Art Museum is the only U.S. venue for Venice: The Golden Age of Art and Music opened on February 15. This stunning exhibition explores the heroic age of art and music in the Republic of Venice, also referred to as La Serenissima or the most serene. Between the early 16th century and the fall of the Venetian Republic at the close of the 18th century, the great flourishing of the arts included innovative painters such as Tintoretto, Tiepolo, Canaletto, and Guardi, as well as composers Willaert, Gabrieli, Monteverdi, and Vivaldi who created some of the most beautiful music of the era. An active pattern will continue with several frontal boundaries impacting the U.S. Winter weather impacts will stay in place over the Pacific Northwest with heavy rain, heavy mountain snow and gusty winds. As the boundaries move into the central and eastern U.S., severe weather will be possible through Friday. Behind the severe weather, winter weather will again set up in the central U.S. Despite low unemployment and near universal health insurance, Vermont is facing an epidemic of heroin addiction. The fairy tale of Vermont -- that it's all small towns, ice cream, maple syrup and smuggler's notches -- has stubbornly persisted in the national imagination, even if Ben and Jerry have long since cashed in and moved on. There's never been enough concentrated wealth for gross inequality or the massive urban centers that tend to serve as laboratories for crippling social problems. Certainly, vice as it is commonly understood reared its head in the past, most notably during what was essentially a local flirtation with organized crime in the prohibition era when alcohol flowed through resort towns from across the Canadian border. And yet that just contributed to the local lore of the state as a repository for rugged Americana. But after Governor Peter Shumlin's State of the State address last month, one he took the unusual step of devoting entirely to the local surge in heroin addiction, there was little left to anyone's imagination. Heroin addiction in Vermont is up 770 percent since 2000, for 4300 cases in 2012. Now the state's political class is working feverishly not just to deal with the health issues presented by what some are calling an epidemic (Shumlin prefers 'crisis'), but also to protect the Vermont brand and buttress a legendary tourism industry, one that brings in over a billion dollars to local breweries, restaurants, and ski lodges every year. The idyllic escape of many a childhood memory has apparently been compromised by the same poison that recently claimed one of America's great acting talents, and now the question is whether the rural state can cope with a drug epidemic that has overwhelmed once-thriving metropolises like Baltimore. Day says he backs direct action for a national inquiry, however his answer was a little more complex. "I support direct action but think if it's going to have an impact we must include others in that march," he said. "Direct action must be done with the inclusion of others relevant to process."

One of the hardest things with machines is to generate sufficient unpredictability, to create good encryption keys or quality simulations. Randomness is hard to come by, for computers. Usually this is done by listening to the outside world, network interrupts, A/D noise, disk seek times, keyboard and mouse input. If you are lucky you'll get 5-10 high entropy bits per second. And then there are successful attacks by flooding the machine with the input which is known to the attacker and not random at all. The computer then becomes predictable, the simulations take the same sequence, and keys can be guessed. Joint Status Report on behalf of Zalita and several other captives.
